The Dawn of a New Millennium

As the first millennium rolls in doom sayers are afraid of an apocalyptic ending to the world. In the year 1000 the people of France believed that the thousandth anniversary of Christ would mark the end of the world. This was a result of the arising famine and thunderstorms that flattened crops. Weeping in the streets and other displays of repentance shook France until everyone realized that things would continue as they were, well at least for another thousand years....

Left:The millennium fever claims two new victims... Shea & Ali !

Right: Denis is a menace to society in the new year.

Far right: Stefan wants to hide until the hype is over!

The year 1000 had a completely different feel than this millennium... namely one of filth! People lived in wooden houses with dirt floors. It is said that you had a one percent chance at being literate and you generally had a life span of 40 years. Modern day conveniences such as toilet paper were substituted with moss, not to mention that the average person only bathed once a year. Aren't you glad this is the second millennium?

Above: Will breaks on through to the new millennium!

Above: Jacqui and Robin think the next thousand years will be a scream!!

Many of the first in a line of leaders reigned in the 1100's, including Henry the First of England & also King Richard. There were many Popes at this time as well. The public was easily influenced by those in positions of authority. Religion was especially powerful at that time.

Vic High has two groups of leaders annually. The Leadership Club and the SKY Club. The Leadership Club is involved with school spirit activities, such as school dances and the school mascot. The SKY Club helps out with community services.

14th Century Dentists use Nitric Acid to Whiten Teeth

Up until 1936, the nylon bristle toothbrushes that we use today were non-existent. People used twigs, hog hair, or horse hair to brush their pearlies. The hog hair toothbrushes originated in China. The bristles were mounted perpendicular to the toothbrush making it possible for the bristles to get into every crack. The first toothpaste ever used was devised in Egypt in 2000 B.C. The Egyptian toothpaste was made from pumice stone and wine vinegar. Then there was Roman toothpaste which was made from human urine, which also served as mouth wash. Human urine was used until the 18th century. After the fall of the Roman Empire, dental hygiene in Europe deteriorated and people practiced home dentistry. Then in 1308 barber surgeons banded into guilds. Barber surgeons were the main extractors of teeth. Aside from extracting teeth, barber surgeons filled and whitened teeth, usually with a highly corrosive Nitric Acid solution. This solution whitened teeth; however, it destroyed enamel causing dental decay at early ages. Throughout the middle ages many people went through life enduring tooth aches and dental decay. The first dentures were devised in 800 B.C. Dentures throughout history have been crafted from ivory,

Dark Ages yield dark thoughts

The time from the 900's to the 1500's is called the Dark Ages because it was a low point for intellectual thought.Very few historical records exist of that period. Other dark things from that time were the Black Plague, Gothic architecture, and witch hunts. King Arthur was supposedly born in the late Dark Ages. The first book was printed in 1445. Sunglasses were invented by the Chinese as well. The Dark Ages were the least productive time of our existence...

Below: an example of dark age productivity

It's Phil, the Dracula look-a-like.

Too much rye bread???

INTOXICATION BY BREAD...

If you are what you eat, be careful when eating rye bread. It could contain lysergic acid, a powerful hallucinogen, which causes convulsions and madness. Poverty stricken villagers in the early 1500's were subjected to bread which contained many suspicious ingredients. When there was a shortage of wheat grain, herbs with strange side-effects were used in making bread. Poppies were often used as a seasoning for bread. They induced euphoria and sleep. Most of western Europe was subjected to these mind-altering foods.

Dracula is dead

In Transylvania, 1477, the Hitler of the Dark Ages finally died. His name was Prince Vlad IV, but was known around town as Dracula, Romanian for the Devil. He came to be known as Vlad the Impaler. He died in exile at age 45. His most noted horror was impaling 25,000 people on stakes. He also forced children to eat their roasted mothers. Dracula's sheer cruelty was his downfall. When a Turkish emissary refused to take off his turban, Dracula nailed it to his head, thus angering the Turks. They sent him to exile. When we think of Dracula, we usually think of vampires, who were also big in the Dark Ages...

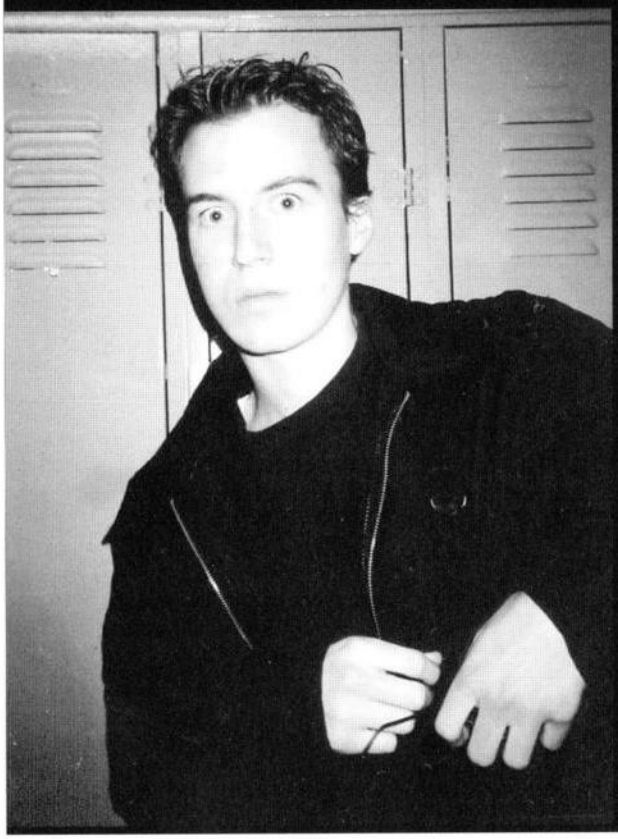
Witch Craze blazes through Vic High!

Many of those considered witches were people with the power or influence to make changes in society. Others were people accused of witchcraft so the accuser could claim their estate; some were accused simply because of the publics desire for a scapegoat.In any case, most of those accused were women, and all of those who were tried as witches faced the excruciating death of being burned alive at the stake.



Above: Glenna, as Joan of Arc, anticipates the many battles to come.

Left:Greg is panic stricken... What if he's the next to be accused of witchcraft?

One of the greatest heroes of France was only 17 when she was burned at the stake as a witch. First known as Jeanne La Pucelle, she became known as Joan of Arc in 1576, a while after her death. She was neither a witch, nor a saint, but by the circumstances of her life and her death, she has been considered both. She was born in France in 1412 (around the time of the Hundred Years War). When she was 16 she heard voices which told her to restore France and lead the French army to victory. In 1430, during battle, Joan was shot through the leg with a crossbow. She was captured by Burgundian soldiers who sold her to the English for 10 000 gold crowns. An English escort brought Joan to Rouen, where she faced a year of inquisition, torture, and impisonment. In May, 1431, Jeanne La Pucelle was burned at the stake as a witch

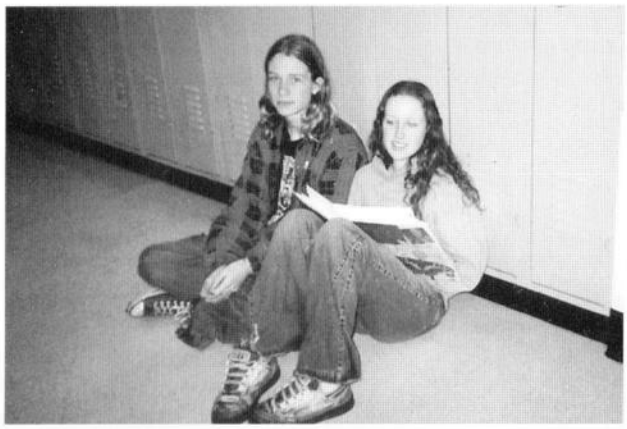
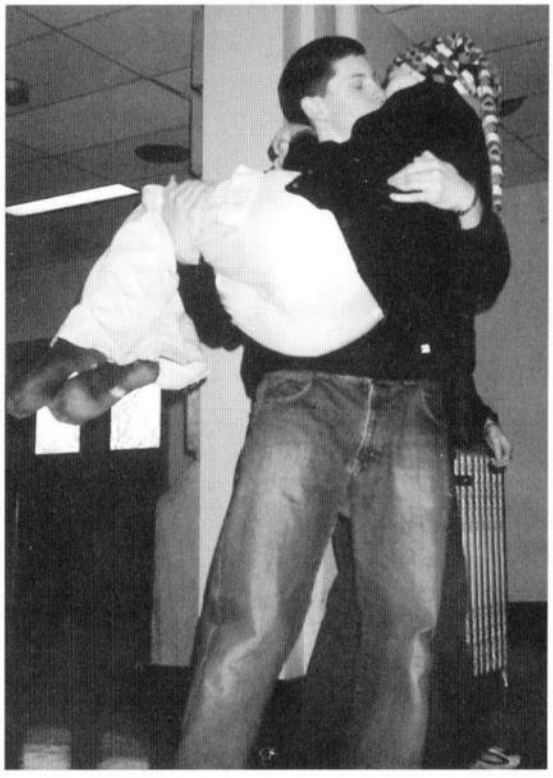
The 1600's Bring Way to Romantic Love



The idea of romantic love has changed somewhat over the years. People often married for economic and political reasons, and very rarely for true love. All that changed in the 1600's, when a group of musicians called the Trubadours, travelled the lands singing about ideas of Romantic Love. Most of the Trubadors were dedicated professional musicians from noble families. William Shakespeare had a hand in changing people's ideas of love when he wrote Romeo and Juliet.



Above: Love blossoms as Will sweeps Tia off her feet!

The Enlightenment

In the halls of Vic High, much diversity is found. The students can be found running from class to class or sitting in the hall listening to a stereo with their friends. Over and above all of that, the glue which holds this school together are the teachers and administration. They coach our teams, participate in extracurricular activities involving students and still manage to have their own lives.

After the fall of the Dark Ages came the Enlightenment. This era, also known as the Age of Reason, was based on the idea that everything had a scientific purpose for being. The philosophers during the 18th century believed that people could find the answers to all of their problems using logic and reason. At Vic High, teachers show students how to use their knowledge to discover the true meaning of life.

Vic High is a place of learning and of course without teachers none of that would be possible. Everyday they come to this school and try their best to fill our minds with knowledge. Like the ancient philisophes, our teachers teach students what they have learned themselves. Our helpful, supportive staff are always there to help out any student in need of some good advice, or just someone to talk to. All in all, Vic High wouldn't be the same without our great staff.

"The most important thing in the Olympic Games is not to win but to take part. Just as the most important thing in life is not the triumph , but the struggle. The essential thing is not to have conquered, but to have fought well"

This creed has been used to inspire competitors and viewers alike throughout the millenium. It has been translated into many different languages and interpreted many different ways but it has always meant one thing; the important and memorable parts in our lives are not the goals we set, but the paths we take to attain those goals, and the influence we have on others in that process-the process that is called life. Vic. High's teams do just that. Through a combined team effort, these competitors set their sights high and have learned and accomplished many things on the way. Within the struggles to perform, adapt to each other and new challenges each individual person has grown and further developed their own persona.

Volleyball is founded in 1896

William G. Morgan, an instructor at the YMCA, created a sport that will go down in history. On a whim, he mixed basketball, baseball, tennis and hand ball for the working man. He called it Mintonette.

One day someone pointed out that Mintonette involves volleying back and forth of a ball. He decided to call it Volleyball.

Volleyball became an offical sport on July 7, 1896 at Springfield College.

The first volleyball championship was held in Brooklyn New York, in 1922 for the YMCA.

Hoopla over the Tigers and Totems

By 1930 Dallas newspapers covered forty-eight women's teams, both college and semi-professional, and offered literally no negative reactions to the athletes' competitiveness or physicality, Cayleff wrote in Babe. In fact, women's basketball was the most popular spectator sport in the Dallas area until the 1950's. Press coverage of women's basketball usually dominated the North Texas sports pages from January through March in 1927-33.

Didrikson was one of the founders of women's basketball and women's sports in general. Didrikson's Beaumont High Miss Royal Purples never lost a game in which she played. Her high school principal remarked that the mark on her school records that merely said 'withdrew, Feb. 14, 1930' should now be revised to say, 'Left school to be world's greatest athlete.'

Basketball was invented by James Naismith in December 1891.The playing rules were published January 1892 at Springfield College. A soccer ball was used as the basketball and the hoops were peach baskets. There was also 9 men on each team.

Bowling, Badminton & Babes

The sport of badminton has a long and interesting history. It dates back thousands of years when it was played in ancient Greece, China, and Japan. The game originated from a sport called battledore and shuttlecock. It involved two players who would hit the shuttlecock with bats back and forth as many times as possible without it hitting the ground. The game has come a long way since then and Vic High students prove that the modern version is much more popular.

Service with a smile!

Millions of people have been bowling for thousands of years and the students of Vic High are no exception.In 1932 a man found a set of implements resembling the pins used in ten pin bowling, in an Egyptian tomb. It is also thought that cavemen played a game like bowling by throwing rocks or pebbles at other rocks and pebbles. Bowling has been played in the stone age, by Egyptians, and by Romans, it was also part of a religious ceremony in fourth century Germany. Whether played competitively or for fun on a boring night, just about everyone has bowled at one time or another.

Grade 11

Grade eleven is like Sunday: it's pretty good, but you can sense an impending doom hanging over your head, i.e., Monday. Grade Eleven is like a french pastry: it's flaky on the outside, but sweet and fruity inside. Grade eleven is like a one-year-old: it seems difficult, but it's not half as hard as the year after. Grade eleven is like a roller coaster: it goes by so fast, and seems so exciting, that you remember it as being really fun. Grade eleven is like a storm: it starts out strong and you are almost blown over, but then there is a sudden calm for you to catch your breath. Grade eleven is like a book: You feel satisfied and enlightened when you complete it. Grade Eleven is like the color orange: Some people like it, some people hate it, some people love it, and some people just don't care.

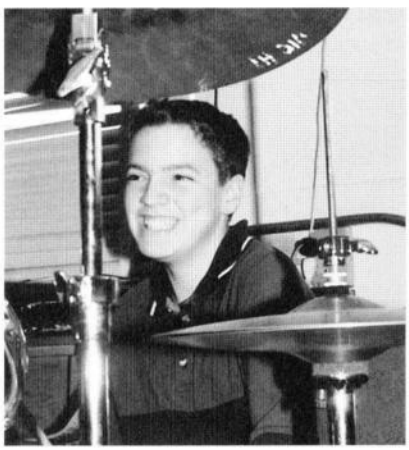
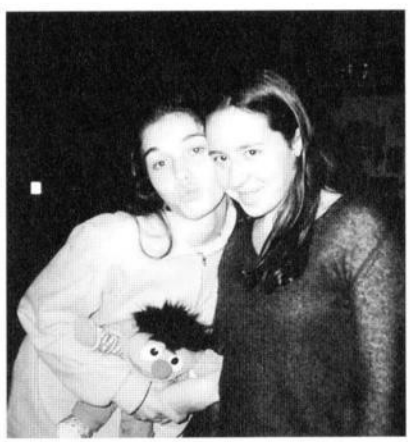
Generations of Graduations

In the past 125 years, Vic High has seen tremendous change, in many areas, especially in rules and regulations. When a student broke a rule they would recieve their punishment in the form of lashes. If boys and girls played together, it was 4 lashes, Giving someone "ill" names was 3 lashes. drinking spiritous liquors at school was 8 lashes!Suprisingly, playing cards at school was the worst, with 10 lashes!





Graduation is actually here! I never thought this day would come. My two years at Vic. High were really fun and unforgettable, but I'm not complaining it's over! Vic. High is the best school! I want to thank my friends for making my high school years the best years so far, you guys are awsome. Thanks to everyone else who has helped me and to all the others, good-bye and good-luck.

The last year of our high school life. It'a been a long and hard road with a few won turns along the way. For now it's time to start a whole new life. I hope to see old high school friends travelling through New Zealand, my future home. The food and times at G&D rocked. Carpentry kicks ya bloody hosers.

Well school was weak, and now that it's over it's about time to start working an going to parties. Fairy Tech taught me my skills and it's time to put them to use. With my career I'll be rolling in cash in no time.

It's been a fun two years. I'd say for most of that time I was in the art rooms. I gave a lot of food away. The Outdoors Club-wow. Robin took us a lot of places.... yeah, those were the days.

Hi. You may remember me from such grad write-ups as Mt. Doug '98. Thanks to phil Hartman for inspiring me. I want to thank all my friends and family for being there. Special thanks to Jackie and the whole stagecraft crew. Chicken pot pie, dinosaur noises, Jiminy Cricket; good times. See you on the other side of the bar. Thanks to C.W., S.L., K.S., C.C., V.B. and love muffin. Amy I ate you baby! Keep on shaggin'. Steppenwolf rules!

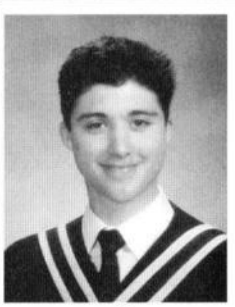
Really! I am not late every day. School is over at Victoria High. I am happy about that. It's not that I don't like school... well vI can't back that up. Remember grad students, it is the end of the black and gold and the beginning of the rest of your life. Do the fun stuff.



Erik Carlson

So this is it. Time to venture into the "Real World". My time at Vic High has been hilarious, eye-opening, stressful, fun and full of strange little twists. Alison, Victoria, Morgan, Cailey, Sam, Jackie, Dan, Lucas, Greg, Kate, Kane, Emily, Kathryn, Rachel and Marcus. You guys made Players a most memorable experience. Also a big thanks to the Grotto; you are my youth.

Vic High has been great, well, sort of, but I'm happy to be leaving. Good luck to the grads, and to my friends, you know who you are!

First of all, I refuse to walk in silence with the lambs. Instead I will make my own path and follow it no matter how obscure it may seem.(If you don't understand this, you're probably just a sheep within the herds.So go back to sleep and forget about my words) And I don't accept rides on banwagons.I'd rather walk. Besides, they're known to fall off track.On a separate note: knowledge comes with experience so thanks to Vic High for that.

There's only one person to thank for this... that would be me. I'd like to thank the subway workers and everybody who got me where I am today- I hold you all responsible.

Eleanore Hilliard

My intention was to write an inquisitive write-up, but I have some to the realization that I am too lazy. First, I am not mentioning names and that is because someone always gets upset for you not having made a reference to them, but that doesn't mean I don't love all of you. Secondly, too much stuff has happened to me to reminisce on. Finally when looking back I wish it had all lasted longer, because I had a great time while I attended thi school.

After thirteen years of ministry approved schooling, I still find myself struggling to reflect on my experiences. Through all of the ups and downs. I'd like to thank my family and all my supportive friends and teachers who looked beyond appearances and truly improve my education. I wouldn't be here without them. As I ponder the approaching millenium, I can't help but feel unsure about my future the choices I thought were clearly cut have now become hazy in comparison.

These two years, if nothing else, I've learned the value of friends. and that they're something seperate from school. I used to assume that friends were just another part of the curriculum, and that I could find good ones wherever I went. This is only the beginning of the future. To all my friends who have been there for me, Thank you! Mari and Caitlin, I'll never forget you. To my family; thanks for the constant love and support. Life is either an amazing adventure or nothing at all. It's good to be just plain happy; it's a little better to know that you're happy;but to understand that you're happy and to know why and how, well that is just pure bliss! Don't forget me, I love you, bye, bye!!

Finally the millenium has arrived, for-filling the hope and joy at Grad 2000. We leave with joy, happiness, sadness and especially skills that we learned from our teachers. As we know it, we have to move on, but our memories we shared still remain at Vic High and in our hearts. I hope the best for the friends I made and the people I met and may they be successful in life. So Grad 2000 WORK HARD, AND PLAY HARD!

A boy is walking down the beach and sees all these stranded starfish. Fearing they will die, he starts throwing them back. An' old man comes by and says, "You're wasting your time, there's millions of starfish, you'll never save them. You might as well not even try." The boy looks at the man, picks up another starfish, and as he chucks it in the water he says, "I made a difference to this one." Wind in the Willows getting down in Cali. Vic High Students Use Their Bodies to Express Their Minds

At Vic High students have learned to communicate with each other on another level. People communicate in many different ways, with their voices, their bodies, or even through music and dance. Here students show their masterful skill at speaking without saying a word...

The Men's Suit Comes to France.

The convenience of buying ready-made clothes is relatively new. Off the rack clothes have been a convenience for less than two hundred years; It was only a hundred years ago that that clothes were high quality and ready made. Before this, clothes were made by a professional Taylor or by the women in the family.

The first ready to wear clothes were men's suits sold in London in the 1700's. These suits were low quality and didn't fit very well, so the only people who bought them were laborers or members of the lower class; however, the suits sold at a rapid pace and members of the tailor's guilds weren't happy about the trend. They expelled guild members who made the suits, and attempted to outlaw the ready-to-wear suits.

In the 1700's the suit phenomenon hit Paris. As the demand for suits became greater tailors competed for business; so the quality and fit of the suits became better, attracting higher-class customers. Towards the end of the 1770's coats were being sold as well as the suits.

Women continued to make their own clothes for years to come; however, with the selection of style, fabrics, colour and time saved, women eventually started to buy clothes.

Two inventions are responsible for turning the clothing industry into the multi-billion dollar industry it is today. The first one was the sewing machine, which permitted mass production of clothing. The second breakthrough was the adoption of scale and standardized clothing sizes for men women and children. This happened around 1860.

After the adoption of standardized sizes, came graded paper patterns, which home seamstresses turned to. The patterns were featured in magazines, store catalogues or sold through the mail. Paper patterns became really popular, even royalty bought paper patterns.

The creation of ready to wear clothing didn't prove that all people were equal; but for the first time in history, fashion was not only for the rich , but for everyone to enjoy.

Designer Labels Big Hit

Right: Christy shows her support for a good cause in the clothes she wears.

Fashion has played a prominent role throughout history. The earliest fashion designers clothed the most prominent nobles, kings and queens of Europe. France and Milan are noted in history books as the world's oldest fashion centres.

One woman introduced the phenomenon of designer labels; her name was Rose Bertin. She began her career in Paris in the early 1770s, designing stylish hats. Her hats were extremely popular, and she was introduced to the Empress Marie Theresa. The Empress commissioned Rose to make over her daughter, Marie Antoinette. Rose designed lavish and extravagant costumes for Marie Antoinette, which dazzled the French court.

When Marie Antoinette became queen, she devoted much time and money to fashion. Rose spent two days a week with her, designing new gowns.

Marie Antoinette's commitment to fashion may have been one of the causes of her beheading, Marie Antoinette and her husband were planning to flee the country prior to her beheading. She ordered twenty travelling gowns to be completed as quickly as possible. If this order had been discovered, it would have been proof of the attempt to flee the country, and would therefore be cause for her beheading.

Rose Bertin, however, moved to London and continued to design clothes. Her fame worldwide helped to draw attention to the people who design the clothes and in turn, paved the way for the designer label craze that is part of our culture today.

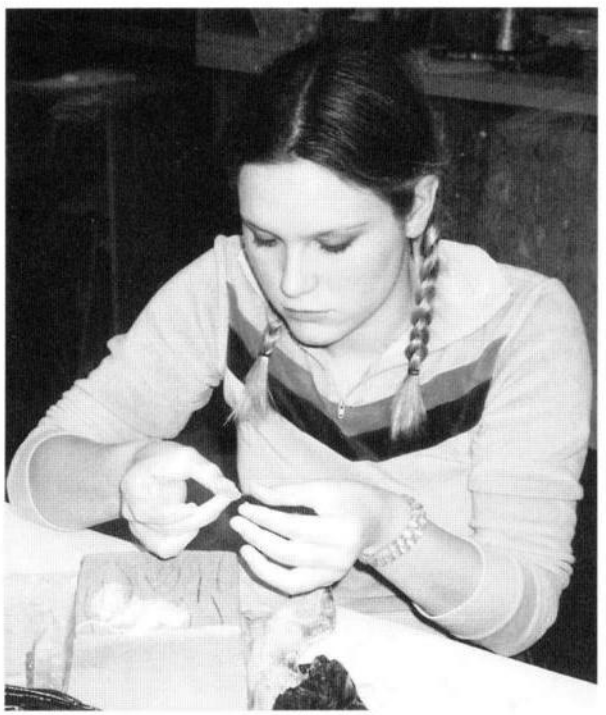
The French Impressionists Emerge with Monet and Renoir



Monet has brought the study of the transient effects of natural light to its most refined expression. Born in Paris, Monet spent most of his childhood in Le Havre. As Monet's painting style developed, his experments in rendering outdoor sunlight with a direct, sketchlike application of bright color became more and more daring.

Renoir is a French painter, whose paintings are very well known. His paintings present a vision of a forgotten world, full of sparkling color and light. He once said: "Why shouldn't art be pretty? There are enough unpleasant things in the world."

These women demonstrate some of the artistic talent at Vic High High.

Bleach Helps Get Those Stubborn Stains Out

A break through for clothing washers, a new stubstance from chlorine gas. The gas is dissolved in water and this creates a powerful bleach.

Bleach is used to whiten clothing. no nasty stains for the fortunate people who have purchased this new product. Sometimes even the cleanest person gets dirty, and that's what bleach is for.

The "players" who are known throughout the school as a tight group, try to bring about a change in the Vic High fashion world. Uniforms of white are a definate go, but getting the stains out is going to be hard work..

Mary Had a Little Lamb-True Story

The rhyme, "Mary had a little lamb", was written by Mrs. Sarah Hale of Boston, an editor of the widely read Ladies Magazine.

Sarah Hale was told of a case in which a pet lamb followed its young owner into a country schoolhouse. She then composed a rhyme and published it in the September- October issue of the childrens journal.

Mary had a little lamb'
Its fleece was white as snow;
And everywhere that Mary went
The lamb was sure to go.

The trouble surounding this story is that no lamb can be found. Our reporters have serched the globe with no luck. The little lamb who's fleece was white as snow is missing and one can only guess that Mary must have stolen it. True the lamb was Mary's pet but how can we be certain of this.

Does Mary really own a little lamb or is this just a farce, only time will tell.

Top right: Two shakes of a lambs tail is all it takes to get these girls baaaing.

Above left: These girls are in a school house, but there is no little lamb in sight, darn our luck.

Above right: Her fleece is as white as snow, but she's not a little lamb. The world is baffled since no lamb can be found, a few Mary's but no lamb.

Vic High's Snow Job 2000

As most of us know, Vic high went up to Mt.Washington for a break from school, but with the teachers. This energentic bunch of skiers and snowboarders took their time and effort to organize and go on this ski trip to Mt.Washington.

Snow job, for everyone who doesn't know, is a concert that Much Music puts on in the Winter. This concert is full of music and fun (who would have guessed?)

Reports from this trip state that Yeti was indeeded seen. Yeti was said to have attacked the students from Vic high because he knew they were eating Yeti's favorite snack, a Mars bar.

Top right: The question on everyoneone's mind is " are these teachers ready to retire? Only time will tell.

Attention: These students weren't at Snow Job, they were only at Mt.Washington, for the day. Only one can imagine what music is being heard by these people. Party on kids.

Vic High Times

Vic High's Sand Job 2000

Our writters were out of ideas for the ski trip, so we called it by the other Much Music concert that takes place in the Summer, Sand Job.

There's really no sand at Mt.Washington that we can see at this moment because Mt.Washington is covered by snow.

There was an avalance at Mt.Washington...once. It might have killed someone.

When sand gets down your pants it sucks. Imagine if time went backwards and sand turns into rocks and this happened very fast, would sand then exsit?

Sometimes I wish that molecules could separate and if it was snowing the snow could hit you in the head. I would be so freaked out but it would still be the most awsomest thing.

Did you Know that Batman can ski. I know, because I saw it in a comic book, and everyone knows comic books don't lie.

Top: "Snow and Sand job 2000 rules, and so does Batman." reported our reporters, namely me.

News Flash! The last black and white Photos taken!

The first photograph ever taken was not so long ago in 1826. By 1871 the first practical method of developing photos was established by R.L. Maddox

By 1888 Kodak was the first company to release cameras to the public in mass quantities . In 1902 artists began to colour their own photos with paint. As the artistic possibilities of photography were realized in the early 1900's there were many revolutionary developments. The growing interest in photography in art gave way to colour photos in 1935. From that point until today colour was made available to the public.

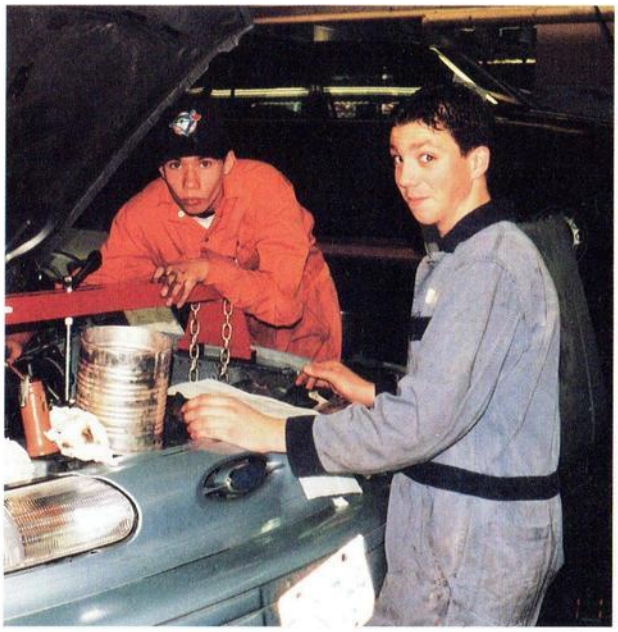
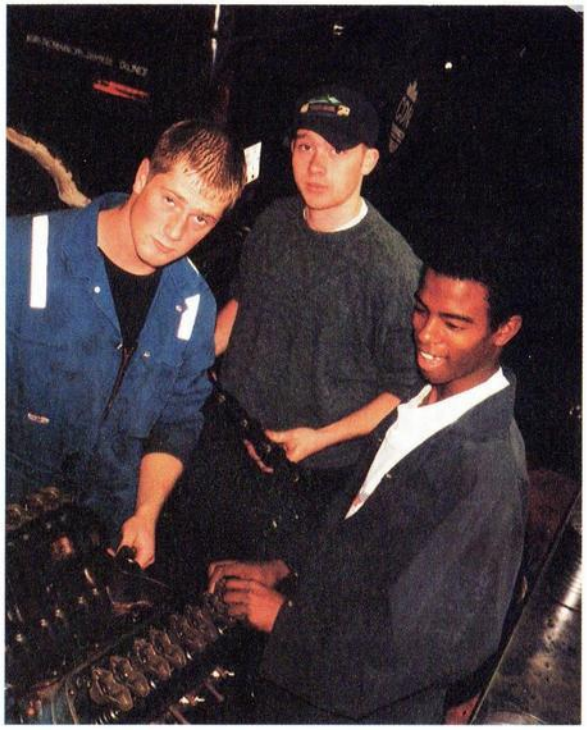
1909 New Ford Expected To Go Down In History.

The Model-T was manufactured by the Ford motor company from 1909-1927. The Model-T started out costing $850-$1000 in 1909. Then became more affordable, costing $380-$485 in 1927. The Model-T was a powerful car and could reach speeds of 45 m.p.h..

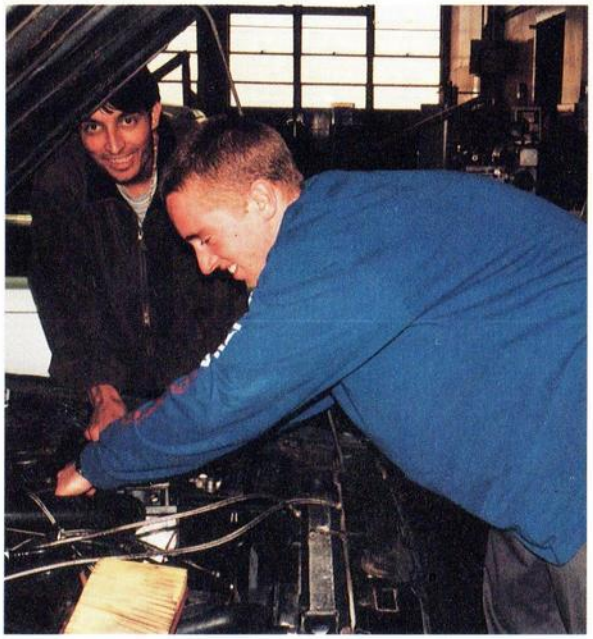
Since the first Cars in the early 1900's, late 1800's, cars have become a major part of our society. For instance, back in the late 1800's early 1900's people saw it as no big deal to walk a mile. Today some people would see that as a major inconvenience.



Morgan and Chris construct the newest Ford, the Model -T.



Neil, Chris, and Sam let us take a peek at the motor of the latest Model-T.



Rommy and Rob show their excitement over the fact the Model-T no longer has to be cranked, which in turn gives them more work.

It was also used to promote physical health. The Scouts are a dedicated group of young men who strive for excellence in all aspects of life.

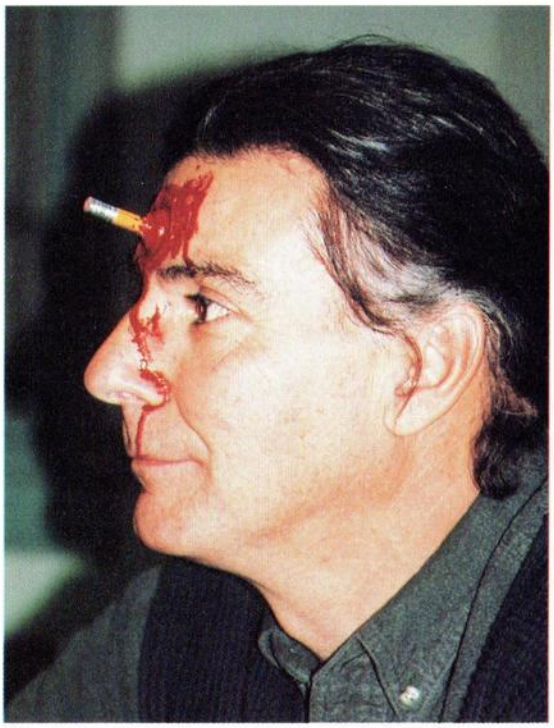
1910 Frankenstein the movie comes out

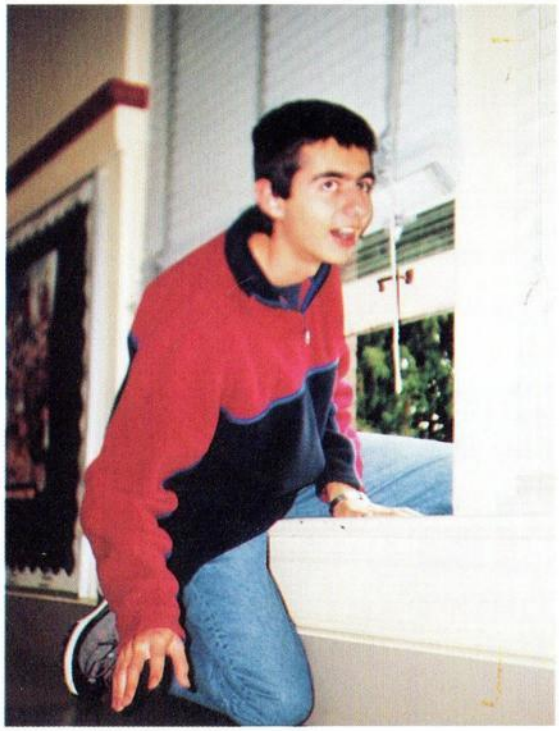
Shannon and Shelbey have been caught in the rapidly catching disease of Frankensteinia.

Reports have been coming from all over the city stating that this disease can scare even the biggest skeptics.

The disease is identified when the infected person speaks in incomplete sentences. You get this disease by watching Franken-stein over and over. Since it came out this year the disease has spread all over the school.



Mr. Buchan has been caught teaching a student with the dreaded Frankensteinia disease. His anger was directed towards pencils and teachers. He obviously didn't appreciate plastic pencils. Mr. Buchan doesn't appreciate them either (especially when they are in his head.)



Bojan is running away from his problems, namely Frankenstein. He really doesn't want to catch this disease, even if he dies in the process.

Great Depression ends, Vic High celebrates!

The Great Depression began in 1929 when the Wall Street stock market crashed. The Depression had devastating effects on the entire country. The stock market was in shambles. The unemployment rate reached a record high. Many banks couldn't continue to operate, because there wasn't enough money. Farmers fell into bankruptcy and a quarter of the working force, or 13 million people were unemployed in 1932.

Depression ends, & food is in abundance. Julia, Rachael, Amy, Lucas & Carrie rejoice.

When the Great Depression ended in 1938, Victoria High School rejoiced as they were treated to a huge Cornerstone Breakfast. Pancakes and orange juice were in abundance. Starving people lined up to get their first good meal since the beginning of the decade. Many were so hungry they almost choked on their crude rock hard rubber pancakes. Their knives bent as they tried to cut through them. Yes, it was a day to remember.

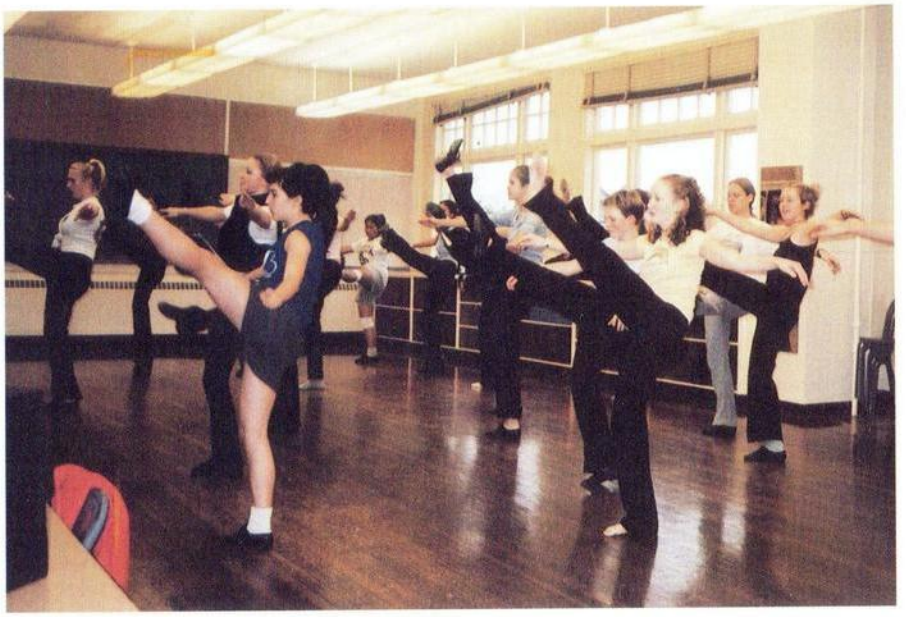
Twenties roar as flappers dance...



Lift those legs, girls. Courtney, your shorts aren't four inches above your knee!

In 1923, a stage show called the Ziegfield Follies introduced the Charleston to the public. It became an international dance craze, and coincided with the Jazz Age. Women were called Flappers because of the way their arms flail when dancing and the loose dresses they wore. Many jobs required their employees to be able to dance the Charleston.

1920 marked the end of WWI and the beginning of a new era. Cigarette lighters were invented, insulin was discovered, and women got the right to vote. Construction was the main industry. King Tut's tomb was discovered in 1921. It was illegal to teach evolution. On June 13, 1920 the U.S. Post Office Dept. made it illegal for children to be sent by mail. On March 6th, police declared women's skirts must be at least 4 inches below the knee.

In the 50's, Rock&Roll shook the world

When the 1950's are mentioned, the first type of music to come to most people's minds is Rock&Roll. Developed from a blend of Southern blues and gospel music with an added strong back beat, this type of music was popular with teenagers who were trying to break out of the mainstream conservative American middle class mold. Popular artists such as Bill Haley, Elvis Presley, and Jerry Lee Lewis were promoted on radio by just as popular disc-jockeys (DJ's) like Alan Freed. The influence of these early rockers has been felt in music worldwide.

"I'm all shook up." --Elvis Presley, 1957

"I guess you could say I'm what this country is all about." -- Mickey Mantle

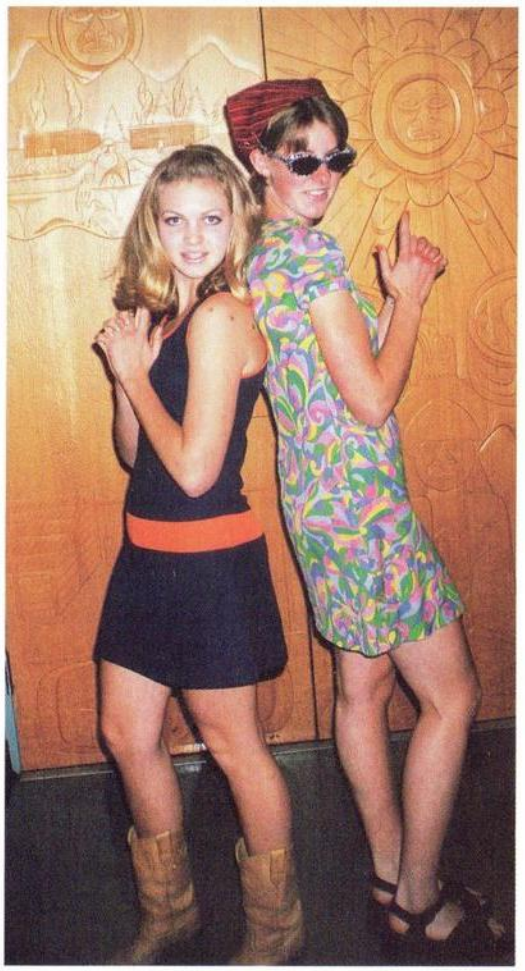
Vic High flashes back to the 60's

The Sixties were an exciting, revolutionary, turbulent time of great social and technological change: assassination, unforgettable fashion, new musical styles, Camelot, civil rights, gay and women's liberation, a controversial war in Vietnam, the first manned landing on the moon, peace marches, World Fairs, flower power, great TV and film and sexual freedom.



"... ask not what your country can do for you, ask what you can do for your country."--President Kennedy, 1961

"I have a dream that my four little children will one day live in a nation where they will not be judged by the color of their skin, but the content of their character."-- Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., 1963

1970's: Will Disco Survive?

The 70's were a time of what is now retro clothing, big hair, and disco music. John Travolta hit it big with Saturday Night Fever and everyone was groovin' to the Bee Gees with "Stayin' Alive." Who could forget 1977, the year Star Wars came out. People say that disco died but Vic High proves that disco survives.

Looking back at the 80's, one realizes how "weird" that decade was. From punk to valley girl - these styles were quite bizarre. One wonders how people could seriously wear some of those hideous styles including neon, slouch socks, torn jeans, MC Hammer pants, jelly shoes, fishnet stockings, cropped shirts, as well as high ponytails, and crimped hair. Some of the all time great TV shows of the 80's were M*A*S*H, 21 Jump Street, The Cosby Show, Alf, Growing Pains and Dallas.

Hit songs from the 80's were, "Hang Tough" by NKOTB, "Ice, Ice Baby" by Vanilla Ice, "Bohemian Rhapsody" by Queen, "Material Girl" by Madonna, "Heart of Glass" by Blondie, and "Our House" by Madness.

The nineties have been a decade in which the general population has become more concerned with issues surrounding the earth. The students of Vic High have been no exception. Led by Jim Pine, the Environment Club was formed with the intention of cleaning our city's parks and beaches. Throughout their travels, they have cleaned Clover Point, visited Merve Wilkinson's Eco-Forest, and helped to increase environmental awareness around the school.

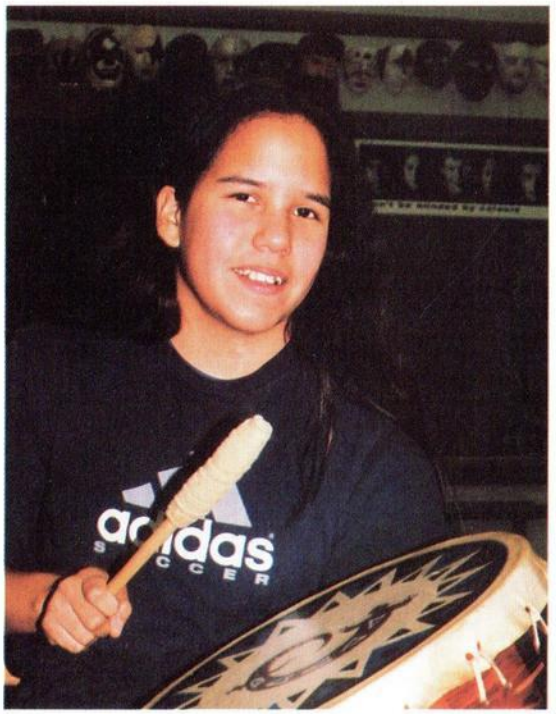
First treaty in years

Right; Nisga'a or not, you can't steal Della's spirit

Below; Sarah pounds out some mad beats at a first nations drum session...



The Nisga'a treaty ratified by the B.C. government in the 90's is seen by many first nations people as a step towards independence and cultural freedom. Regardless of what band the first nations people come from, most are extremely excited at the prospect of self-government.

For many years the aboriginal people were denied their culture, and their land. Finally, we have given them what was rightfully theirs.

The treaty brings with it a sense of ownership and belonging.

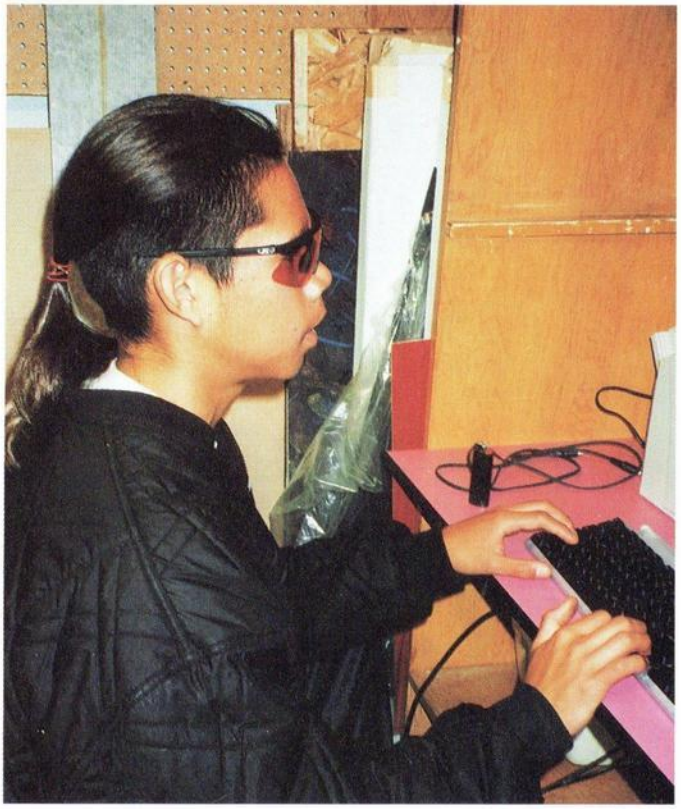
Windows '95 Takes Over

Windows '95 has taken over the computers at Victoria High School. No-one knows where it came from or if we will ever escape its clutches. Who knows which computer program will plague us next?

Right; Josh makes computers look cool
Below; Kevin and Isaac are looking a little too suspicious



Studies have shown a growing trend in the number of boys using the internet. There is reason to believe that this can be directly attributed to the increasingly high number of "special sites" that can be found on-line. Will boys become permanently affixed to their computer screens, or will the novelty finally wear off? The chances are very slim.

Right; Rob thinks computers are swell, Ty and Oli agree.

Trends of Now and Then

Over the past millennium there have been countless trends, everything from men in tights to pet rocks and of course piercings and tattoos. One thing that remains the same are the people who try to start new trends. For example the scientists who made teflon, originally meant it to be used on a space craft. It burnt up on impact, so we use it on frying pans instead! Another interesting invention was the pretzel. They were originally made by monks in 610 A.D., as rewards for students who memorized prayers. The shape was origi-

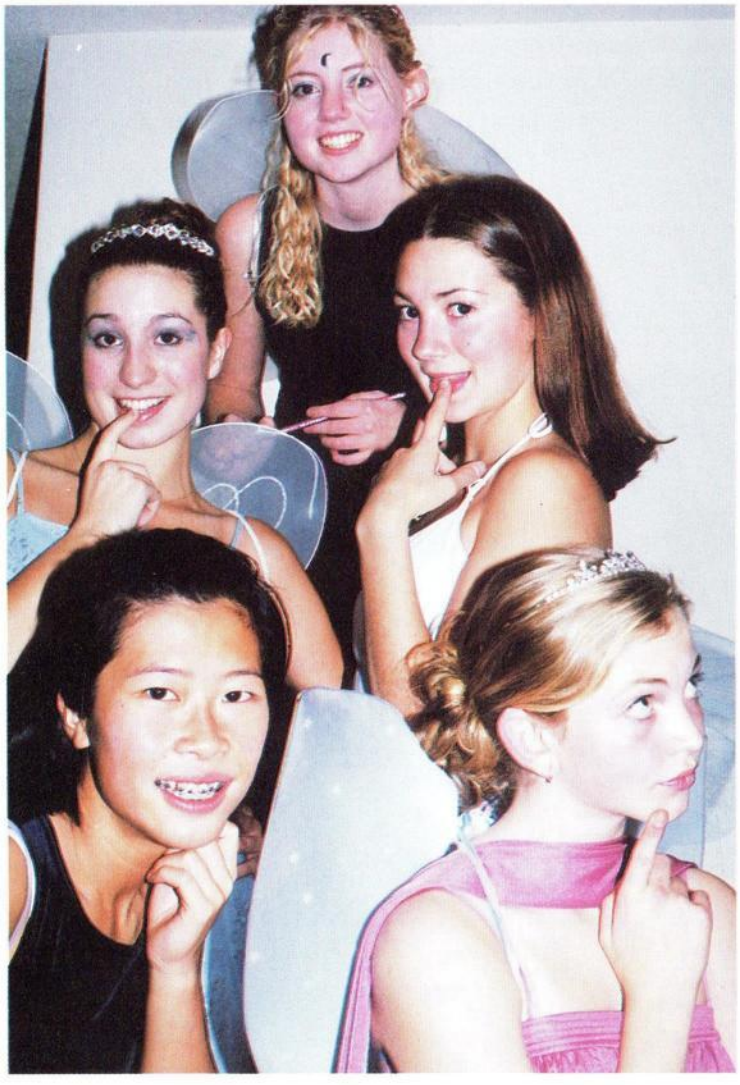
Will fairies rule in the future ?



With technology quickly advancing, and imaginative minds running wilder and wilder as we approach the millennium, one can only wonder what the future beholds. There is no need to look any further than the corridors of Vic High, and the fairies that wander through them. Are they instruments of destruction, or will they use their wands in a helpful way?

Kristl the fairy overcomes evil- all in a day's work!

The innocent faces of our future rulers! Ha ha ha ...Amanda, Jessica, Anna, Lea and the anonymous fairy destined to take over the world in the fight for domination against evil, at least we hope so.

With help of the fairies powers, Andrew defies gravity, is this what the future holds for us?
